Leverhulme Fellowship

Lindsay Farmer has been awarded a 3-year Major Leverhulme Fellowship for his project ‘Criminal Law and Markets’. The project will investigate the shifting focus in criminal law from markets being seen as essentially self-regulating and beyond the proper scope of the criminal law, towards viewing criminal law as central to the constitution and maintenance of the proper functioning of markets.

Leverhulme Research Project

We were pleased to welcome Sally Zhu to the GLT team in November 2018, joining us as a Leverhulme Trust Early Career Researcher. Sally was awarded her PhD from LSE in 2018 and previously studied at the University of Cambridge (LLM) and LSE (LLB). Her project investigates how cyber- and sharing-economies change the material relations between persons and objects, and what implications these have for the fundamental concepts of property. At present her focus is on how activities in the sharing economy can produce different assemblages of labour and property, to reconceptualise relations between persons mediated by material objects.

Congratulations to Tariq Olcay and Gaofeng Meng

Congratulations to two of our PhD students who successfully defended their PhD theses: Tariq Olcay, ‘Constitutional Unamendability: An Evaluative Justification’ and Gaofeng Meng ‘The Household Responsibility System and The Concept of Split Property’. Well done!

8th Annual Lecture in Jurisprudence

On Friday 19 October 2018 we hosted the 8th Annual Jurisprudence Lecture given by Alain Supiot. Professor Supiot holds the Chair ‘Etat social et mondialisation : analyse juridique des solidarités’ at the Collège de France. He is the Founder, and currently Fellow, of the Nantes Institute for Advanced Study (IEA), Fellow of the British Academy, and a member of the International Labour Organisation’s Global Commission on the Future of Work. His lecture, titled “Democracy laid low by the market” offered a defence of the value of democracy as a source of meaning and guarantee of the trustworthiness not only of our shared political institutions but also of the spoken word itself. The lecture was published in the latest issue of the journal Jurisprudence.

Adam Smith Lecture and GLT Fellowship

Christine Desan, GLT Fellow for 2019, will give the 4rd Adam Smith Lecture in 28 May 2019 on “The Monetary Structure of Economic Activity.” On Wednesday 29 May, we will also host a one-day seminar, with the participation of Prof Desan (details to follow).

Workshop on The Material Constitution

Marco Goldoni is organising a workshop on ‘the Material Constitution’ on the 30th and 31st May 2019. It aims at a systematic and encompassing reconstruction by bringing together 18 scholars from different disciplines: law, political science, sociology and philosophy, with an interest either in materialist and/or institutionalist conceptions of the material constitution. The workshop aims also at testing the epistemic value of the material constitution (in alternative to liberal constitutionalist methodology) as a key notion for understanding the history and the current developments of constitutional orders.

Participants Include:

- Marija Bartl, University of Amsterdam
- Nehal Bhuta, University of Edinburgh
- Emiliios Christodoulidis, University of Glasgow
- Mariano Croce, University of Rome La Sapienza
- Ruth Dukes, University of Glasgow
- David Dyzenhaus, University of Toronto
